Communities Inmates Released to in 2010

Rhiana Kohl, Ph.D, Executive Director, Office of Strategic Planning and Research

Prepared by
Susan McDonald, Senior Research Analyst and Matthew Moniz, Research Analyst
July 2011

The population covered in this report, termed 'release to the street population', includes any criminally sentenced inmate released to the street from a Massachusetts Department of Correction facility as well as DOC inmates released from other correctional facilities (jurisdiction). Under this definition, DOC inmates released from Massachusetts' Houses of Correction, other states' correctional facilities and the Federal Bureau of Prisons during 2010 are also included in the population. The population described in this report includes the following:

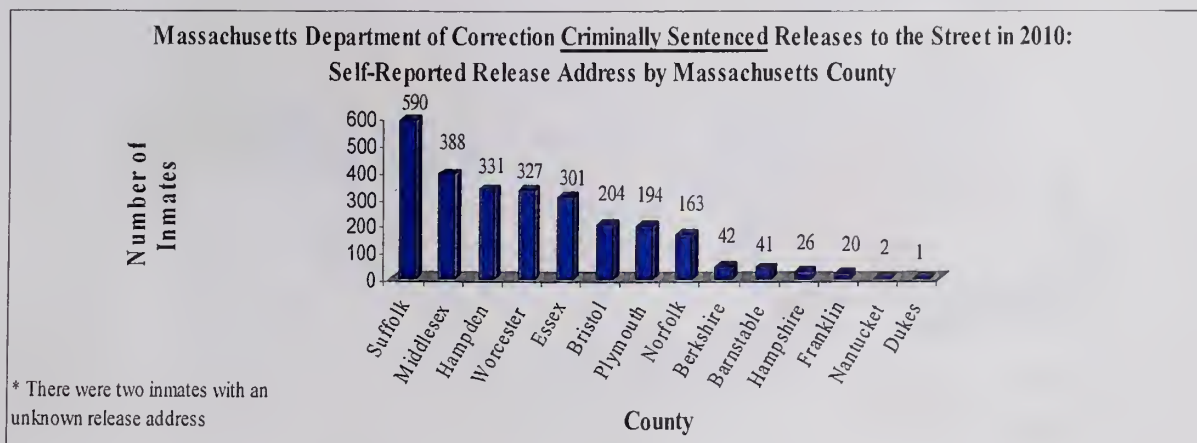

- ❖ Criminally sentenced inmates released via parole or expiration of sentence to the street.

Release address is self-reported by the inmate prior to release.

Introduction

Inmates under the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts Department of Correction are released to many different communities throughout the state and in some cases outside of Massachusetts. This report is a statistical look at the communities criminally sentenced inmates releasing to the street via parole or expiration of sentence intend to reside after their release¹. For the purposes of this report communities may refer to counties, cities or towns, and locations outside of Massachusetts.

Chart 1

In calendar year 2010, there were 2,738 inmates released to the street, which was a decrease of 34 (1%) from 2009. This decrease was driven by a reduction in male releases, 1,962, down from 2009 by 57 (3%). However, female inmate releases did increase by 23 (3%) in 2010, with 776 releases.

¹ Information regarding release address is self-reported by inmates prior to their release.

Over half (53%) of the inmates released during 2010 reported a release address in one of the top ten cities listed in Table 1. Similar to 2009, the highest number of releases reported a community in the city of Boston (20%) as their intended release address, followed by Springfield (8%), and Worcester (6%). Additionally, Worcester experienced the greatest decline in annual releases with a 38% reduction, 64 less releases than 2009.

Similar to 2009, a majority of the male releases (59%) reported a release address in one of the top ten cities/towns. However, more than half of female releases (56%) reported a different city/town or a location outside of Massachusetts as their release address with only 44% reporting a release address in one of the top ten cities/towns.

Boston was the top city reported by both male (23%) and female (12%) inmates as their release address. The second most commonly reported cities for males were Springfield (11%) and Worcester (6%). However, from 2009 Worcester did incur a drastic decrease in male releases (48), which dropped the city from the second most common release city to third. Females differed from the males with a second most commonly reported release address of Lynn (6%). Female releases by community are somewhat skewed due to the fact that some counties house females and some do not.²

² Not all Massachusetts counties house their female inmates. Massachusetts General Law dictates that females may be committed directly by the courts to the DOC for a House of Correction sentence. The counties of Barnstable, Berkshire, Bristol, Franklin, Hampden, and Suffolk house females in their county correctional facilities.

* Source: U.S. Census Bureau, 2010 county population count

Twenty-two percent of the total population reported a release address located in Suffolk County. The majority of female³ releases were to Middlesex (20%), Essex (17%), and Worcester (15%) counties. The majority of males were released to Suffolk (25%), followed by Hampden (16%), and Middlesex (12%) counties. An examination of the concentration (the rate per 100,000 residents) of releases to the street presents a slightly different outcome with Suffolk County having the greatest concentration at 82, while Hampden had the second greatest at 72 followed by Worcester at 41. Middlesex County becomes ninth on the list at 26.

From 2009-2010, the DOC has continued to make progress towards releasing inmates from lower security facilities. Pre-release and minimum security facilities, such as Boston Pre-Release, Pondville Correctional Center, and MCI-Plymouth experienced increases in the number of releases; Boston Pre-Release experienced a 34% (54) increase, followed by MCI-Plymouth 31% (17), and Pondville Correctional Center 17% (17).
